— CONNECTIONS —

Connecting our Churches, Ministries & Events

An Important Update from Pastor Glen Hossler Chair of the Church of God District Council

Dear Association Members (pastors, congregations, etc.),

I want to inform you of some changes that are happening in our District. Starting in September, the District Office in Salem will no longer be the central physical location for our District Pastor and the District Office managers (Sally and Valerie). We will be leasing the building and using the income to help balance our proposed budget for the next fiscal year.

We will be sharing more details about this during our Annual Business Meeting; which, this year, due to Covid-19 restrictions, will be a hybrid meeting. It will be on Saturday, Aug. 1, at 10:00 AM. Oak Park Church of God will host those who will be attending the meeting in person (but that likely will be limited to 50), and the remainder will attend via zoom.

Also, Sally Ranton and Valerie Borst will both be stepping down from their positions as of September 1; as will Ruth Palmer, who has been serving as our Association Recording Secretary for a number of years.

Please keep these people in your prayers as they move on to other ministries; and keep the District in prayer as we move through these transitions.

Know you are loved and prayed for by many!

Grace and Peace in these challenging times,

Glen Hossler

On a Personal Note....

As of August 31, 2020, Valerie and I will be leaving our posts here at the Church of God District Office. We did not plan to leave at the same time, but that is how God led. Val has been here 8 years and I have been here 17 years. This decision was not taken lightly and, in fact, was deeply bathed in prayer. We will greatly miss the people we have come to know and love as well as the camaraderie here in the office. We recognize this will be an adjustment in many areas, so your patience would be greatly appreciated! ♥

Sally Ranton

The Lord bless you & keep you; The Lord make His face shine upon you & be gracious to you; The Lord turn His face toward you & give you peace. Amen.

OREGON CHURCH RALLIES COMMUNITY FOR HIGH SCHOOL SENIORS DISPIRITED BY CRISIS

By Carl Stagner, Church of God News, May 2020

All she wanted to do was encourage a few high school seniors. After all, the class of 2020 found themselves at the height of their school career when the pandemic brought expectations to a screeching halt. A bi-vocational pastor working with English-language-learners for the school district, Linda Tucker-Bays had a heart for these students discouraged as dreams of senior trips, final sports seasons, traditional graduation ceremonies, and student celebrations were dashed. When she created a page on Facebook offering her church and the community a chance to “adopt” a senior, little did she know how God would multiply her efforts. Pastor Linda and Chapman Community Church of God in Scappoose, Oregon, never could have imagined what would transpire over the next few days.

Since March of last year, Chapman Community Church of God has filled “launch boxes” in partnership with an organization called Every Child. Foster children aging out of the system face a variety of struggles, but launch boxes, filled with essential household items, provide a necessary boost to get these young women and men started on the right foot. As the COVID-19 restrictions upended daily life for everyone, the resulting changes have been especially challenging for children and teens. Linda Tucker-Bays recognized the unique problem and sought to find a way to expand their church’s launch-box ministry to cover high school seniors dispirited by the coronavirus crisis.

Chapman Community Church of God is a small congregation, so the idea had to take into consideration their limited resources. While scrolling through social media on a Sunday afternoon, Linda’s light-bulb moment came. One of her friends in another state posted on Facebook about her daughter who had just received a gift as a result of an “adopt a senior” page.

“I started a Facebook page by pretty much copying and pasting the information from this other online community,” Linda explains. She also sent a message to a friend whose son is a senior to get the project off the ground. Others could post a photo and brief bio about their high school senior, while church and community members were encouraged to leave a comment to indicate adoption of that senior. More than one person could adopt one senior, but the project would ensure that at least one person adopted every student. Whether by greeting cards, flowers, gift cards, delicious treats, or other creative means, each senior would receive a little extra support and love needed especially at this critical time.

“That was Sunday,” Linda recalls. “The community has since totally embraced this thing! By Saturday morning, we had 71 seniors posted and 70 adopted...we’ve run out of seniors who haven’t had someone to adopt on several occasions over the last few days.” As of May 13, the number of adoptions had climbed to 109.

Not all parents use Facebook, so friends of other soon-to-be-graduates began to post on their behalf. Depending on family dynamics, some students were more likely to fall through the cracks of the initiative, so Linda's connections with the school district have helped make additional connections with students. The school is home to about 170 seniors, so there is still work to be done, and certainly obstacles will make it difficult to reach everyone. But Pastor Linda is utterly amazed by how God took this project from its humble beginnings to such widespread impact.

"I've realized, after the fact, that this is meeting several needs," Linda explains. "Parents get to say publicly how proud they are of their kids. These students are seeing how much their community cares. One parent posted her son receiving a gift and said this was the first time she's seen him smile in a long time. The community, like me, wanted to do something for these kids but just needed an avenue through which to do it. The resources of the community are being utilized, which go beyond those of the few families in my congregation. People love reading about these seniors. And, reading what people comment has brought (good) tears to my eyes!"

Linda notes another positive aspect of the project. People are shopping local, purchasing gifts from the local bagel shop, for instance, which was struggling due to the pandemic. Indeed, this has been yet another unanticipated blessing brought about by simple obedience.

"I just read a book recently about embracing the small church ministry," Linda reflects. "It was really assuring to me that it's not about the size of your church, but whether or not you're doing what God has asked you to do. So, as much as I'd like to have a bigger number on Sundays, I think it's important to do what we can with what God has given us. This has been such a simple thing that anybody can do. Don't give up because you're small. Keep looking for ways to serve the community around you."

DIANE ADAIR GOOD

May 1, 1939 - May 28, 2020

Diane Adair Good was born in Newport, WA. on May 1, 1939 to her parents James Sinclair Nelson and Bernice Adair Mason Nelson. She was the only child of their union. Her father was a lumber grader and her mother was a school teacher. Diane spent the early years of her life growing up just across the Washington state line in Old Town, Idaho. Her parents were divorced when Diane was eight years old.

When Diane was in elementary school, her mother secured a teaching assignment in Sunnyside, Washington. While she and her mother were living there, her mother became friends with another teacher in Sunnyside named Hazel Schmale. Hazel was the daughter of the Pioneer Church of God minister Minna Jarrett, one-time pastor of Vancouver, WA. First Church of God. Through this connection Diane was introduced to the Church of God movement.

At the end of her sophomore year and before the beginning of her junior year Diane met a young man who was to become her husband and life partner in the mid-summer of 1955 at the Tacoma First Church of God. Diane was 16 and John was 18 and was stationed at Fort Lewis, WA. in the U.S. Army. On that Sunday morning Diane entered the church sanctuary with the Schmales and John happened to catch her out of the corner of his eye. He was instantly drawn to her. There was something striking about her presence.

Diane went on vacation with her family to visit Yellowstone National Park and John did not see her again for about three weeks. But he inquired about her from the Schmales and when she returned the Schmale girls filled Diane in on the details about his interest in her.

A week or so later the Schmales invited Diane and her mother and John to Sunday dinner after the church service. After Sunday dinner Charlotte, Geraldine, Diane and John drove out to visit Point Defiance Park. John and Diane started getting acquainted.

John had no transportation outside of the public bus system. So he did the next best thing, he telephoned Diane every evening after he got off duty for about two months. On September 30, 1955, John purchased a 1951 Chevrolet Coupe and drove it by Diane's home to show it to her. Diane invited herself for a ride in his car. For the rest of their lives they always celebrated this occasion as their first date and marked it every year.

With transportation John picked Diane up for church, youth meetings, the movies, out to eat, sightseeing, after school activities and anything else they chose to do. Their relationship continued to develop until on the evening of December 5, 1955, John proposed marriage to her. Diane said, "Yes, but I don't want to talk about it". She was just 16 and faced two more years before she would graduate from high school. John was just 18 and had nearly two more years of his Army enlistment to serve out. Of course, in the ensuing days they did talk about it and made plans. Some twenty-one months later John and Diane were joined in marriage at the Tacoma First Church of God by the Reverend E.G. Brown on August 26, 1957. John had mustered out of the Army at 4:30pm and they were married at 8:00 pm.

Following their honeymoon trip down the Pacific Coast to San Francisco, John enrolled in Pacific Bible College (Warner Pacific) in Portland, OR. and Diane stayed at her mother's home in Tacoma to complete a business school course. They got together on the weekends. She moved down to Portland to set up housekeeping with John in one of the old houses on campus following completion of her business course. During their four-year stint at Warner when they were students Diane gave birth to their two children, a daughter, DaniJo and a son, Timothy.

Diane served alongside her husband in the pastoral ministry for 55 plus years in churches in Kentucky, Indiana, California and Oregon. She was always a supportive and integral part of the work of the Lord in each of the churches they served. She was a spiritual partner with John in the ministry. He could and did trust her with confidences. →

Her insights into people and situations were invaluable. He trusted her relationship with the Lord and she trusted his. God, by His Spirit, made them one in marriage and one in ministry.

Diane was a wise counselor, a gifted listener who was approachable to all people, accepting others without being judgmental. She was always given to hospitality. For 35 of the 36 years she and John lived in the home on Mt. Tabor many different people lived with them. The list includes family members, college students, and international students. God had led them to the house, provided for the needed resources and they freely shared with others as the Spirit led. It became a shelter to live out the implications of Christian discipleship in a family setting. Diane always set the tone for the home. She had a servant's heart.

Diane loved the Christmas season. She would begin to plan for the events surrounding Christmas at least six months ahead. When she and John went to view the house they would purchase and live in for 36 years, one of the foremost things in her mind was where she would place the Christmas tree and how she would decorate the house. Everything about the season was special to her -- getting the family together to trim the tree and finish decorating the house, the shopping, purchasing the right gift for everyone on her list, the Christmas dinner. She never forgot the significance of God's greatest gift of His son Jesus at this time of the year. Because the season was so important to her, she made it special to all in her family.

Over the years Diane worked outside of the home as a bookkeeper, a sales person in the business office of a major department store, the secretary to the Athletic Director at Exeter Union High School, and as a flower arranger in a florist shop. She found fulfillment in these jobs and they provided additional family income. But most of all she enjoyed being a homemaker, a wife, a mother, and later a grandmother and then great-grandmother. She always loved those around her well. She was easy to live with.

She was a natural and talented youth leader. She always was drawn to youth. She liked them, loved them and was interested in what interested them -- even rock concerts. She could effectively relate to youth without becoming one of them. She was always the adult in the room but the youth felt comfortable with her and trusted her. Her love for them and ministry to and with them was a key factor in many of them becoming Christians. She always had a warm smile and an infectious laugh.

Early in her married life by His Spirit, God called her to be an intercessor and a prayer warrior. She frequently carried spiritual burdens which the Holy Spirit gave to her for specific Hollywood actors and stars, musicians, family members, politicians, friends and acquaintances. Sometimes the Spirit would reveal specific things to her about the people she was interceding and praying for. Sometimes she would not know why the Spirit had caused her to be concerned for the person or the situation. But she was always faithful to our Lord and the people God laid on her heart and mind. This was true down to the end of her earthly life. She was a godly woman with some very unique spiritual gifts.

On the late evening of Tuesday, May 19, 2020 her condition took a decided downturn. She was admitted to Hospice the next day. And on May 28th in the late afternoon her physical life came to a pain-free and peaceful end just as her heavenly life began. Her physical body died but the person her family knew and loved as Diane Adair Good did not die.

We know and believe this is true because of what Jesus told His disciples and subsequently us in John 14:1-6. He told them, "I am the Way, the Truth and the Life." He was the first person to ever pass through death and into life. He is the truth about this experience -- the living proof that just as it came to pass for Him, it happens to every believer when he or she physically dies. And He is the life-giving Spirit who gives eternal life to us.

Diane loved greatly and was loved greatly by many in return. She will be greatly missed. But our sure and certain hope is that we shall see her again. Diane is survived by her husband John, their daughter DaniJo and son-in-law Jerry Jones, their son Timothy and his wife Licia Good, their seven grandchildren, and their nine great-grandchildren.
