Churches Planting Churches

The Association of the Churches of God (Anderson) of Oregon and SW Washington partnered with a Church Planting Training team from the Oregon Pacific District Church of the Nazarene in November, for a three-day Dynamic Church Planting International (DCPI) Conference.

Forty-six individuals were trained in planting new churches for the glory of God and the expansion of His Kingdom (16 in Churches Planting Churches, 24 in Church Planting Essentials, and six in Church Planting Essentials in Spanish) and four (David and Martin Shrout, Steve Kufeldt and Nathan Dunbar) became Certified Trainers, qualified to re-teach the training materials.

The training team consisted of Brent Hofen, Mario Flores, Tomas Alvarez, Virgil Askren, Larry Knight, Ryan Emerick, Dr. Reeder, and Bud Pugh.

Good reports of practical materials are reflected in Hillsboro's related article (see page 2). -kt

Francis Chan to speak at 2015 COG OKC Convention

By Carl Stagner

Best known for his bestselling books Crazy Love and Forgotten God, Francis Chan is a proven leader in the church today, evidenced both in his ability to communicate truth to the current generation, and by his life of courage and integrity. As the founding pastor of Cornerstone Church in Simi Valley, California, he has gone on to author several books, produce a variety of teaching videos and resources, start a Bible college, and support missions efforts at home and abroad. Well-known in the Church of God, Chan will be one of several featured speakers at Church of God Convention 2015, June 22–25, at Crossings Community Church in Oklahoma City.

Francis Chan is the first of the speakers to be named for CHOG Convention 2015. Steve Rennick, senior pastor of the Church at the Crossing (Indianapolis), has also been added to the list of convention speakers. More names will be released in the coming weeks, and registration will soon be available. Until then, however, Church of God ministers and laypeople are urged to plan now to be there.

Those who assembled in the auditorium at Crossings Community Church this past June know just how incredibly the Holy Spirit moved at CHOG Convention 2014. Feedback was overwhelmingly positive, as convention-goers affirmed the format, venue, energetic worship, relevant teaching, and clear focus. From the scheduling change to better accommodate the needs of pastors (Monday through Thursday), to the abbreviated, yet intentional General Assembly meeting, it was clear that a new day had begun in the Church of God.

This new day has only begun to unfold. Churches that have not been involved in the collective work of the movement have coalesced around the new direction and emphasis on changing the world. Pastors from across the country have been re-energized and re-inspired to carry out the tangible work of the gospel in their own congregations and communities. Your voice, your God-given talent, and your church are a vital part of this new direction. That's why ministers and laypeople from Washington state to Florida are depending on you to make CHOG Convention 2015 a priority. You'll discover what thousands of Church of God people already know firsthand: while many things have changed, the love of God that has always manifested itself through his people is overflowing into an ocean of cultural transformation.

Will you be a part of it? Check www.chognews.org and www.chogconvention.org for the latest updates on Church of God Convention 2015.

Church Plant in Hillsboro

By Pastor Robin Brooke

Have you ever been told that you are going to have a baby?! How did you feel? Excited Happy? Anxious? Even scared? And ready for the challenge? Well, that's a bit how I feel. And definitely ready for the challenge!

Here in Hillsboro we are praying for a new name, a new ministry, a new outreach and a new look. We are praying for souls! Finally the time is right. Property prices have risen so we can sell a couple of lots to increase the income. I am negotiating with a cell tower company re a lease on our sight. And, two of us just attended a Dynamic Church Planting (DCP) conference. They offered the training that I have been seeking! What an awesome time for ministry here!

Valley Hope Community Church was planted about 25 years ago. We've seen miracles. We've seen people accept Jesus, families restored, lives changed and many other miracles. And we've seen hard times too. In the last several years we have overcome many obstacles while waiting for the right time to sell property so we can re-plant the church here.

Why do a new church plant? According to statistics from the DCP conference, in the US., 80% of people who have come to know Jesus Christ in the last 6 years received Him in newly planted churches! What does that mean? 1. The harvest is still ripe and ready to be gathered in. 2. There may be better ways of reaching people than the methods we are currently using. 3. A new church plant creates a new opportunity!

Do you want to be part of this exciting adventure? We need a Prayer Team of people who will pray fervently, urgently, consistently. We need a Core Team of 40-50 people who will gather regularly to work, pray and be trained. The Core Team will be the foundational workers who see the vision and work to make it reality. Next summer we will need labor for painting inside and out, and for upgrading the landscape. We will need funds to replace flooring and the roof. We will need teachers, help with computer technologies & audio/visual technologies, décor, musicians, people to go door to door, help with various outreach ministries, and much more.

What an exciting time! Is God calling you to join the adventure? Contact Pastor Robin Brooke at valleyhope@frontier.com or call her cell phone at 503-679-7226.

The adventure awaits!

Window on our World: Update from Hanoi by Dr. John and Gwen Johnson

"So, you've been here three months now (and 4 days). How's it going?"

We hear this question quite often from friends in Hanoi. We have reflected on that question and decided to share some of our thoughts as well as give you a "window on our world" the past couple weeks...

When we first moved overseas in 1980 as newlyweds to South Korea we lived in the "boonies" of Mokpo. We spoke almost no Korean and very few spoke English. We had no telephone (certainly no cellphones, but not even a landline!), no TV, no radio, no computer or internet, no car and no ex-pats, no English-speaking international church; snail mail took about two weeks each way, peanut butter and jelly and familiar food items were very difficult to come by and usually only found on the Black Market in larger cities.

Life was challenging and frustrating but also rewarding. We made a lot of Korean friends, were very involved in the Korean church (although we could speak very little we sang in the choir!), YuDal mountain was "in our backyard" and we retreated to it often. The sea that surrounded our port city was within easy walking distance. We purchased bicycles that we used to ride out into the countryside as well as around town.

We lived in an apartment above our "boss" just a 5-minute walk from school where we taught English and our church was just a 2-minute walk away. We played Backgammon and Aggravation and cards and read books and listened to cassette tapes until we thought we would go crazy!

Hanoi reminds us of Mokpo in many ways. Even though it is a city of 8 million there are alleys and streets that take us right back to Mokpo. Pigs are roasted along the street, chickens are slaughtered as you wait (we buy them at the supermarket, thank you!), smells are similar. We still have no TV or car (or bikes). But the differences are huge! We have internet and computer and a used iPhone that help us stay in touch with family and friends easily. We can find many (not all) food items if we are willing to pay the price. We have come to serve ex-pats as well as English-speaking Vietnamese and work with English-speaking people every day.

Senior Moments

by Ruth Bissett, Salem, OR

Greetings in the name of Jesus! Here we are at the time of year when we have a national day of thanksgiving. As most of us are aware, Thanksgiving is getting squeezed out by all the Christmas merchandise. I noticed, as I am sure you have, that the Christmas merchandise starts right after Halloween. By time you receive this, Thanksgiving may be history for 2014. However, I feel like focusing on it as it gets such a little of our attention. Hopefully, we are expressing praise and thanks all year round and every moment of every day. With Christians, Thanksgiving is every day. Yes, the coming of our Savior as a baby is so important to us and I love to celebrate His birth. An important part of our Thanksgiving is giving thanks for that Babe in the manger and for our risen Lord and Savior. I wonder what would happen if our nation would give more attention to this holiday and the giving of thanks to our God.

At our recent Outstanding Oak Park Senior (OOPS) potluck we did something kind of fun that you might want to try. I gave out a list of each letter of the alphabet. Then each one wrote a word or phrase starting with that letter, of something they were thankful for. For instance for A, I wrote America; for E, Grant Fall, wrote everlasting life. These can be funny things like peanut butter for P or serious things. We had a lot of fun with this and it was a good conversation starter. Actually, I think Grant Fall could have preached a sermon from his list. I plan to use this list idea for our Thanksgiving day celebration.

Many of you are into computers so I am sharing this link of things to be thankful for: <http://biblestudyplanet.com/what-does-the-bible-say-about-being-thankful/> There are many other sites on thankfulness that you can find. I AM THANKFUL FOR COMPUTERS! I could list that under C. I am thankful for all of you and that I have the opportunity of serving you in this small way. In closing I will share these scriptures. Psalm 30:4 (NKJV) Sing praise to the LORD, you saints of His And give thanks at the remembrance of His holy name. Psalm 97:12 (NKJV)

Rejoice in the LORD, you righteous, and give thanks at the remembrance of His holy name. Also, check out Psalm 105:1-5

Christian unity, a refreshing relationship

by Rev. Lewis Hyslip

One Sunday morning in 1954, in Yokosuka, Japan, I saw a small building with a cross displayed. As I came closer I recognized the music, although it was played in an unfamiliar style. I didn't know the language, but I was drawn by the message of "My Jesus, I Love Thee, I know Thou art Mine" I entered and sat on the back pew. Soon a young lady came and sat beside me and greeted me in English. She stood and said something to the pastor. Through the interpreter, the pastor said, "Welcome to the American Sailor." It was at this point that I experienced Christian Unity. The congregation stood, turned and faced me and greeted me with a smile and the traditional Japanese bowing of the head. I was embarrassed, but I knew I was "home." I never learned what denominational label identified the congregation, but I felt connected to The Body.

Christian Unity was one of the foundational doctrines in which the Church of God Reformation Movement took root 130+ years ago. In order to maintain unity, connectivity and identity within the ranks of our movement, we must work at identifying and rejecting those things that have the potential to divide.

We cherish our freedom from man-made creed and the opportunity that we have to pursue our pilgrimage in accordance with our own relationship with Christ. Sometimes, this leads to situations that are divisive, such as an unhealthy sense of autonomy and independence.

If Jesus, and the early church leaders, gave us any universal message in addition to that of salvation, it is that we are all connected in The Body, and as responsible members thereof, we are each accountable to the other. This holds true for individuals, congregations and larger cooperative entities. If we could somehow catch the magnitude of Paul's message of how The Body, directed by the Holy Spirit, works cooperatively and in a supporting manner, we just might be, as was C.S. Lewis, "surprised by joy." This is nowhere more vivid than in personal and congregational support of the financial needs of the church's ministry.

In this connected relationship there is a refreshing vitality, transforming nurture, and the fulfillment of the prayer of Jesus. (John 17:21). May it be so.

Donations totaled $11,739.36, which includes several categories: General Operations: $2,583.41; Cabin Repairs: $1,420.95; Building Fund: $7,735. Additional Pledges of $6,350 were made ($6,050 for Building Fund and $300 undesignated). Great job! Thank you!

Anticipated pledge income is currently at $41,485.15—an ever-changing number, depending on additional pledges or income. The 2013 three-year campaign total received through November is $26,919.97. Our bookkeeper emphasizes that the campaign is an ongoing effort, with a need for continued giving.

Meanwhile, the structure is up! Take a look at the progress shown here. Winter snow has arrived, however, and for now the crew has moved on to a Springfield project due to the weather-related work risks. “They will be back in the spring to finish the job,” says Mel Neu, Chairman of the CWB Commission.
