Christ Amid Crisis: Syrian Refugees Loved by ‘People of the Messiah’

by Carl Stagner, Church of God Ministries

They're not just "swarms" or "masses" of people. They're people. They're individuals. They're individuals for whom Christ died. One of the most complex issues of our day has hit the Middle Eastern country of Turkey especially hard. The Syrian refugee crisis—as it has been dubbed—offers no simple solutions, no easy answers. While the Church of God strategically prepares a holistic, long-term response, believers in Turkey are busy meeting immediate needs. Known by the refugees as "people of the Messiah," Christians in the region are boldly loving the "least of these." Ruth Lyons, Church of God contact on-the-ground (Eurasia Ministries), gives us a closer look.

While others are dismissing them, God's people are welcoming them. Believers aren't ignoring the very real problems posed by such unprecedented migration, but they do recognize that behind each refugee's face is a soul in need. Even as the Syrian refugee crisis fades from the headlines, it's important for the Church of God to know that the issue remains front-and-center in countries like Turkey. According to Ruth, three primary areas of concern weigh on the hearts and minds of those most affected in Turkey: One, internal political tension; two, ethnic tensions between Turks and Kurds; and, three, the growing influence of the Islamic State (IS) and the refugee crisis. As a result of civil war in Syria and the rise of IS, economic instability and rampant violence has become the norm. "As a result of the Syrian refugee crisis," Ruth explains, "Turkey now hosts nearly two million refugees, according to official statistics, but the actual numbers may be even higher. This means that at least 3 percent of Turkey's population is now composed of refugees who have crossed into the country in the last two years."

All of this bad news has presented an opportunity for the Good News of Christ to be made known through word and deed. Ruth tells the story of one family's exodus from Syria, painting a picture of the need for a tangible expression of the gospel:

We had just delivered some children's clothes, a carpet, and a hot water heater to Hanan and her family. The warm jackets we had were both for girls—fine for their six-year-old, but we hadn't realized her eight-year-old was a boy. Nevertheless, they took the dark pink fur-lined winter jacket gladly, and he put it on, proudly parading around the house. "It's fine," she assured us. "We can't afford to be fussy about the color..." How many brothers and sisters do you have?" we asked. We learned that there were five, and they had all fled from Aleppo to Turkey. Hanan just needed to talk about the day that changed their lives... They had lived in a four-floor apartment, with two apartments per floor. A bomb made a direct hit on the building, flattening it so only the ground floor remained. Hanan was outside in the yard, and she raced into the rubble, screaming for her children, and also the names of her sisters. The children were fine, but shaken. Her sisters had not been at home, thankfully. Having escaped with their lives, they'd lost everything, and decided to flee across the border, for the bomb had been dropped by their own government.

Much of the ministry to refugees has been ongoing since civil war first erupted in Syrian more than four years ago. These believers are in it for the long haul, and understand the power of developing relationships. "By visiting the families we get to know their stories and to recognize the dignity they have as people created in the image of God and deeply loved by him," Ruth explains. "We can rarely give a package of food or a bag of clothing without the lady of the house wanting to show us hospitality in some way."

Coming to the aid of refugees, believers in Turkey have been a source of food, clothing, and other basic necessities. They've offered medical care and helped refugees get to hospitals when needed. They've distributed hardcopy Bibles and Bibles on CD in the Arabic and Kurdish languages. They have prayed with the refugees. In all, God has been glorified.

Having witnessed the Syrian refugee crisis firsthand, Ruth Lyons suggests some specific ways the Church of God can pray. Pray for wisdom in determining best ways to help the refugees. Pray for protection, both physical and spiritual. Pray for those refugees facing serious medical issues. Pray for displaced children without access to adequate education. Pray for the Protestant church in Turkey and those who are coming to the aid of refugees. Pray for those who read and hear the message of the gospel. Finally, Ruth suggests, pray for area governments to develop a strategy that will help bring peace back to the region. Thank you!

Freedom Sunday 2016: Plan Now!

by Church of God Ministries (Posted Nov. 3, 2015)

Last year the charge was given, and you responded. Thank you! It has been said that perhaps more than any other church-wide initiative, CHOG TraffickLight has mobilized the Church of God to work together in unity to accomplish a single goal. As we've continued to make Jesus the subject of who we are why we do what we do, we're determined more than ever to champion that which moved the heart of Jesus when he walked this earth. In Luke 4:18-19, Jesus quotes the prophet Isaiah's proclamation of freedom for the captives. Motivated by the heart of Jesus, the Church of God rallied together to raise more than half of our million-dollar goal. Now it's time to finish the job. On Valentine's Day 2016 (February 14), Church of God congregations will observe Freedom Sunday once again, and once again, we'll rattle the very gates of hell.

We know the need is greater than ever. We've reflected on the biblical mandate to put our faith into action. Pastors, lay leaders, and churches are urged to join the effort to fight against the pervasive evil of human trafficking. We've made participation accessible for every church by providing a wealth of free, downloadable resources at our website. Prayer, worship, and sermon ideas are at your fingertips, as well as promotional tools, statistics, and Bible study material.

Register your church at www.CHOGTraffickLight.org/FreedomSunday. There you'll find everything you need to make this year's Valentine's Day less about candy and roses, and more about God's unconditional love for the oppressed and enslaved.

Imagine what the Lord can do through his people if we are only willing to say Yes. Love for the unloved. Hope for the hopeless. Freedom for the captive. We've experienced the Good News of Christ, and now it's time to pass it on. Will you join us?

Register and prepare for Freedom Sunday 2016 at www.CHOGTraffickLight.org/FreedomSunday.

Region 5 Connects and Clucks

Church of God congregations from Longview, Rainier, St. Helens and Scappoose gathered in Rainier, Oregon, November 1st, for a time of connecting through games, skits and snacks. Each congregation was asked to bring finger food to share, and to provide a game and a skit. Attendees maxed capacity of the fellowship hall, with overflow into adjacent rooms. A video clip of "Hunt and Cluck" documents the laughter and noise level as "roosters" scurried to collect candy pointed out by their clucking, cackling, wing-flapping "hens". A cup-stacking game involving rubber bands was another hit, with the winning team pictured below. Region 5 representative, Mike Kernutt, emceed the event, hosted by the Rainier church.

MAY, James W. (Jim)

Nov. 26, 1931-Oct. 4, 2015

James (Jim) May passed away October 4, 2015, from complications related to a fall he took earlier in the day.

The son of Lawrence and Myrtle May, Jim was born in Yakima, WA, and spent his growing up years in Washington, Idaho and Montana, graduating from high school in Big Sandy, MT.

In 1951 he enlisted in the U.S. Army and in 1954 was honorably discharged. That fall Jim enrolled in Pacific Bible College, where he met, and later married, Betty Wagoner in 1955. They had two children, Donna and Glen.

Jim enjoyed working for the Lord and his family. For many years he served in different capacities in local churches, but he also worked with the State Association, camp meetings, etc..

His career of 30-plus years was in the United States Postal Service, first as a clerk then as a Postmaster. No matter where he was, he was always happy when he was helping others.

Jim is survived by his wife, daughter and son; three grandchildren, several step-grandchildren and three brothers and three sisters.

A memorial service was held at Hoodview Church of God in Woodburn, OR, October 17, 2015. It was an inspiring service with some rousing Southern Gospel music as well as several hymns. A good time of refreshments and fellowship followed the service.

“For to us a Child is born,
To us a son is given,
And the government will be on his shoulders.
And he will be called Wonderful Counselor,
Mighty God, Everlasting Father, Prince of Peace.”

-Isaiah 9:6 (NIV)
